Human remains discovered

Members of the Niagara Regional Police's Forensic Services Unit combing through samples of dirt on Wednesday along Point Albino Road. On Tuesday, police were called to the scene after a construction crew installing a gas line in the area discovered several bones that were later determined to be of the human kind by the coroner's office. On Thursday, a second skeleton was found in the same location. Read the full story on page 5.

Report slams LHIN

Ombudsman says community was not engaged properly during process

Kris Dubé
The Times

The Ontario ombudsman doesn't have any jurisdiction over hospitals but is qualified to criticize the amount of community engagement used by the Hamilton Niagara Haldimand-Brant Local Health Integration Network (LHIN) when implementing changes to health care in the region.

And that is exactly what he has done in his highly-anticipated report appropriately titled "The LHIN Spin," released at 11 a.m. on Tuesday.

In the report, André Marin says although the boards of directors for all 14 LHINs across the province are selected by their communities, "the extent to which the broader public is actually engaged in decision-making remains undefined and inconsistent."

Closed meetings a 'serious matter,' says Marin

From Page 1

One of Marin's concerns is that the LHIN has not educated the public about what to expect in the way of community engagement through health service providers and its own processes

"Unfortunately, this practice is antithetical to the LHIN model. It serves to undermine the integrity and credibility of the LHIN's decision making, and in my view, is simply illegal," said Marin in the report.

Investigation, Marin found that several meetings conducted by the LHN were closed to the public for the purposes of "education" of its members, relating to the Niagara Health System's Hospital Improvement Plan and a similar plan within Hamilton Health Sciences.

"It's a very serious matter to close a LHIN board meeting to the public," said Marin.

"While the LHIN may have been well-intentioned in holding its 'education' sessions, these meetings were plainly illegal," he added.

He feels the LHIN model may represent an evolution in local health services planning, but there are flaws to it.

"Community engagement is fundamental to the success of the LHIN model and my investigation has revealed that, at least in the case of the Hamilton Niagara Haldimand Brant LHIN, community engagement has not lived up to its promise," said Marin.

In the report that is over 40 pages long, Marin makes three recommendations.

The first relates to relating to a greater amount of accountability and consistency into the LHIN's

“While the LHIN may have been well-intentioned in holding its ‘education’ sessions, these meetings were plainly illegal.”

— André Marin

general processes when it comes to decision making.

"I am recommending that the ministry of health and long-term care consider putting forward guidelines, setting out minimum standards relating to community engagement, to be undertaken by both health service providers and LHINS,* said Marin.

His second recommendation suggests that the Hamilton Niagara Haldimand Brant LHIN make more of an effort to educate the public through its website, meetings and other methods concerning its "general practices relating to community engagement as well as the nature of community engagement to be expected with respect to specific plans under consideration."

The ombudsman's third recommendation says the LHIN needs to make a by-law amendment on the way it holds meetings and "immediately cease its practice of holding closed educational sessions or other private meetings."

In the report, a letter from LHIN chair Juanita Gledhill is also provided.

She says the LHIN is carefully considering Marin's findings but feels the closed session meetings were not illegal.

"All deliberations and decisions have and continue to be made in the open board meetings and/or appropriately constituted closed sessions," said Gledhill.

Mayor Doug Martin said he is pleased with the report, because it emphasizes some of the concerns he and other people in the local community have been vocalizing since the hospital plan was implemented last September.

He used the rally at the Leisureplex in October 2008 as an example of how community engagement was not put to proper use, pointing out how over 5,000 people attended and still nothing was done to change the plan.

"They took no action on that," said Martin.

He feels the LHIN needs to re-evaluate the situation

the beginning, properly utilizing the concerns of the people on the plan.

"The ombudsman has clearly said this was not done properly... stop the process and re-engage the community," he said.

Recent research raises concerns that testing the DNA in newborns' blood samples is not an effective way to detect cytomegalovirus (CMV), an infection that causes hearing loss in children. Provincial politicians comment on ombudsman's report

NDP leader
Andrea Horwath
joins about 50 people at DMH on Thursday

Kris Dubé
The Times

Once ombudsman Andre Marin released a report on his investigation into the amount of "community engagement" the Hamilton

Niagara Haldimand Brant
Local Health Integration
Network used to implement hospital restructuring plan in parts of Ontario, including Niagara, it was time for provincial politicians to weigh in on the subject.

One of them was Ontario's NDP leader Andrea Horwath, who joined about 50 protesters
in front of the Niagara Health System's Douglas
Memorial site on Thursday

“People in the community deserve quality health care and it's time for the government to stop breaking the law and start listening.”

— Andrea Horwath

morning.

She feels the ombudsman's highly critical assessment of the LHIN's practices and closed session meetings should warrant a moratorium on any further changes and order a review of the decision to move ahead with converting emergency rooms in Fort Erie and Port Colborne to urgent care centres.

"People in the community deserve quality health care and it's time for the government to stop breaking the law and start listening," she said.

In 2008, Horwath was one of over 60 people who filed a complaint to the ombudsman on the decision, which she feels was a catalyst for the report as many of its findings were her own and so many other people's beliefs.

"As we saw from the report, we had a LHIN that was out of control, holding illegal meetings and making decisions without any consultation.
They were essentially snubbing their noses at those who call Niagara home," she said.

On Thursday afternoon,
Fort Erie's provincial government representative Kim Craitor agreed it is a scathing report on the LHIN.

"Rightly so," he said.
"I have to agree with him,"
he added.

Since 2006, Craitor has been monitoring in provincial parliament for a bill on openness and transparency, which he feels would have saved a lot of work for Marin if he wasn't now getting ready to move it for a third time.

"If it were passed, we wouldn't have even gone to the ombudsman," he said.

In 2008, Craitor presented what he called an "extensive report" to the minister of health and long-term-care of that time, George Smitherman, on how he feels health care should be structured in Ontario. He feels this is a good time to bring it back to the table.

"I'm going to dust it off, take it back to the minister and say take a look at this,"
said Craitor.

Ontario PC
leader and Fort Erie native Tim Hudak also weighed in on the report saying it proves, in his opinion, that the Liberal government's plans for health care need to be re-examined.

"The ombudsman proved,
beyond a shadow of a doubt,
that Dalton McGuinty allowed the LHINs to ignore their legislated responsibility to consult with the public before imposing drastic cuts on local front-line health care services. Dalton McGuinty and his LHIN appointees have run out of excuses... all of their health care cuts must be revisited right away," said Hudak.

Ontario NDP leader Andrea Horwath visited the Douglas Memorial site on Thursday, along with members of the Yellow Shirt Brigade and the general public.

Two skeletons unearthed

➤ No foul play suspected after police investigate bone discovery in Point Abino

Kris Dubé
The Times

Police have confirmed that human bones found on Point Abino are not the result of any previous suspicious or criminal activity.

On Tuesday, construction crews installing a gas line in the area contacted the Niagara Regional Police (NRP) when they unearthed several bones while working.

The coroner verified they were in fact human bones.

On Wednesday, the NRP's forensic services unit was called to the scene, where they continued to investigate the area with students from the University of Toronto and an anthropologist.

On Thursday, staff sergeant of the NRP's Fort Erie detachment Dave Hunter said the first skeleton was not alone, as another collection of skeletal remains was located in the same area.

After the NRP's investigation at the scene, it is believed foul play was not a factor in these findings.

"The investigation conducted by the anthropologist has determined that this is a suspected 'historic grave,'" said Hunter.

The team of investigators could be found working at the site in plain view of motorists and pedestrians in the area behind yellow police tape until Thursday, when they departed from the scene.

"This investigation is no longer a police or coroner's matter," said Hunter.

The two skeletons will now be turned over to the Town of Fort Erie where a further investigation with an anthropologist and other historians will continue.

More candidates keep registering for election

There's no time sweeter than election time.

Since the last update on local candidates who have put their names in the hat for the upcoming October municipal election, three more residents have come forward.

In Ward 6, long-time Kinsmen Club member Larry Graber has come forward announcing his candidacy and so has Stevensville resident George Jardine, who is most known as the Times' editorial staff for the letters to the editor he regularly submits on local issues. Another candidate who came forward this week who will be running in Ward 3 against the incumbent Bob Steckley is Kimberly Zanko, who is the former president of the Greater Fort Erie Chamber of Commerce.

With so many candidates coming forward this time of year, it is difficult to provide each of them with an equal amount of coverage. Yes, we did publish a few longer stories earlier in the year about some candidates, but only because they registered earlier than others.

Now, we will come right out and say it is impossible to give every candidate their own story and hope they understand this.

If you really want to know who to vote for, continue paying attention to local issues and make sure you attend "All Candidates Night" on Sept. 28 and Sept. 30 at the Leisureplex banquet hall. If you don't know who to vote for, hopefully this will help you decide.

-Kris Dubé

Do You Remember?

Thank you Lori Murrell-Brown for identifying two boys in last week's photo of the Boy Scouts at a Kub Kar Rally. In the front middle is R.J. Colosimo, then Daniel T.J.

Thanks as well to Jim Athoe, Bernice Ruch and an unnamed caller who all had a great deal to say about the previous week's Boy Scout photo. That group of Rover Scouts, between 16 and 18 years old, and their leaders were attending a Boy Scout Jamboree sometime between the late 1930s and mid 1940s. There are still scouts to be identified, but we now know that Bud Rebstock, Jim Donnelly, Ron Murdoch were in the photo. Ron Mulholland, Gary Teal and Albert Holmes are in the back row. Their leaders were Marvin Hildreth, Harold Ruch, and Russ Harvey. Among the scouts in the front row are Bill Brown and Barry Athoe. We then have some possible names... either Ron Sherk or John Millington, either Doug Cornwall or Johnny Cury and either Stan Cross or Nick Stuggard. Any further help in identifying the remaining Scouts or confirming some of the names would be greatly appreciated.

In this week's photo, a group of "Centennial Belles" on a float cast coy glances towards the camera. Does anyone know any of the ladies or what parade this was? Please contact the Fort Erie Historical Museum by phone at (905) 894-5322 or by e-mail at museum@forterie.on.ca.

The Times and the museum appreciate everyone who looks forward to this weekly feature.

Ombudsman's report allows residents to say 'I told you so'

Kris Dubé
Editor's Notebook

It's about time someone listened.

You will notice this week's issue has rather extensive coverage on the Ontario ombudsman's scathing review of the Hamilton Niagara

Hardimand Brant Local Health Integration Network (LHIN). That's because it is a really big step for people who have been voicing their concerns over the Niagara Health System's Hospital Improvement Plan since it was introduced in 2008 and implemented in 2009.

The ombudsman doesn't have any authority over hospital systems and this report doesn't give him the ability to tell the 14 LHINs across the province or the ministry of health and long term care to stop the process and restore emergency rooms in Fort Erie and Port Colborne.

But it does allow for those who have been fighting to be able to say "I told you so" to the provincial government and will help them fuel the fire when continuing to petition the minister to re-evaluate the process.

In October 2008, we had a rally at the Leisureplex where over 5,000 people attended, waved signs and cheered for the speakers who explained to the LHIN's expert adviser Dr.

Jack Kitts why removing an emergency department from Fort Erie is a frightening direction.

Did he listen?

Not really. The only change he advised the LHIN to make when approving the Niagara Health System's Hospital Improvement Plan was to change the hours at Douglas Memorial from 14 hours a day to 24, when it would be converted to an urgent care centre.

Not that much of a change if you ask me.

There's no point of having an expert adviser who I know for a fact spoke with many people from the community, including our mayor, about what the impending changes would mean for our growing municipality, if he didn't plan on listening all along.

I find it hard to believe there was even one individual who told him the thousands of people at the rally didn't know what they were talking about and that stripping a town of essential medical services was a good idea.

I'm not a medical professional by any means but I am intelligent enough to know that Niagara isn't one big municipality and having to drive out of town on the QEW in one of our notorious snow storms during an emergency could be a potential disaster waiting to happen.

This is the time where the provincial government has to swallow its pride and realize the people are right. If you would like to leave me feedback, call me at (905) 871-3100 ext. 207 or send me an email at editorial@forterietimes.com.

Yellow Shirt Brigade satisfied with ombudsman's report

Report re-iterates what Yellow Shirt Brigade has been 'saying all along'

Dear Editor,

The Yellow Shirt Brigade was invited to Queen's Park on Tuesday to attend the press conference and hear the much awaited Ombudsman Andre Marin's report on the Local Health Integration Network (LHIN).

This report confirmed what we have been saying all along... the LHIN was not to be trusted nor believed.

Mr. Marin cited several instances which included informal LHIN undocumented community engagements, such as speaking at the grocery store, a town-hall meeting, or on the golf course, "where one member told us that's how he concluded that most local people were in favor of the restructuring plan".

He went on to give an instance of the LHIN board viewing a 51 slide presentation on the restructuring plan just before it gave the green light and only two of

— Joy Russell

those slides referred to community concerns.

Mr. Marin stated that the LHIN board members adopted an illegal by-law allowing them to meet behind closed doors for so-called "educational" purposes where they discussed restructuring plans away from public view.

When the LHIN was created it was put into the LHIN legislation that they promised to consult the public, and Mr. Smitherman, who was the minister of health and long term care at the time, said this would make it "very clear that decisions must be made on the basis of public interest and in the full view of the public."

Mr. Marin found it troubling that this same by-law was adopted by LHINs across the province.

The Yellow Shirt Brigade try to attend the LHIN board meetings as they are open to the public however we must agree with Mr. Marin when he further stated that "members of the public are left to wonder if the meetings they are allowed to attend are just a rubber stamp, with the real engagement going on in private, inside the LHIN's boardroom."

Like I said,

We attended some of the board meetings and often came out thinking that the decisions were all made before hand.

We also noted that some of the board members were starting to ask questions and looked uncomfortable with what was going on. Now we all know why.

This time it was the LHIN next time let it be the NHS that is exposed.

Staff at the Old Fort estimate between 700 and 800 re-enactors participated in last weekend's siege event. People from all over Canada and parts of the U.S. could be found enjoying and discussing history with one another.

American soldiers leaving the Old Fort during the "sortie" re-enactment at last weekend's siege weekend. The event was being held for the 24th year.

Revisiting history

Kris Dubé
The Times

For the past 24 years, history enthusiasts from all over North America have been flocking to Fort Erie for the annual Siege Weekend at the Old Fort.

Last weekend, more re-enactors participated compared to previous years, says Heather Gorman, manager of the Old Fort.

She estimated between 700 and 800 people made the trip to take part in the historic celebration. She said in her discussions with various re-enactors, it seems this is the most preferred event for people who take re-living moments of the War of 1812 seriously.

"It's fantastic and we're so flattered this is their favourite event," she said.

The weekend wrapped up with battles on both Saturday and Sunday and Gorman said she couldn't deem it as anything other than a huge success once again.

"They're so dedicated and we couldn't ask for a better group of re-enactors," she said.

Phil Mozell could be found away from the battlefield but set up in his wife Debbie made the trip from Oakville, something they have been doing for a number of years.

"It's a great way to meet the public and talk history with them," he said.

Toastmasters a great way to build confidence

Local woman says public speaking group and South Niagara Life Centre changed her life

Kris Dubé
The Times

Five years ago, Debbie Annunziata probably wouldn't have been comfortable sitting down with someone from the local newspaper to tell her story.

Back then, she suffered from conditions like agoraphobia, recurring anxiety and the fear of germs. But after she and her husband sought marriage counseling at the South Niagara Life Centre (SNLC) and she realized how effective it was, she decided it was time to overcome her fears and began delivering speeches at the SNLC.

After that, she decided to join the Honeymoon City Toastmasters, a group that meets weekly in Niagara Falls where people learn how to wipeout their fear of public speaking.

Since joining a year-and-half ago, she has won numerous awards including first, second and third place finishes at the international level.

Before Annunziata was able to conquer her conditions, this never would have been possible, since she claims she used to "fear everything," when she dealt with her agoraphobia.

"You don't even want to leave your home," she said.

She says so much of her positive progress starts at the success of her counseling at the SNLC and it is if it weren't for them, she and her husband Tony wouldn't be celebrating their 27th wedding anniversary this year.

"They were the rainbow in our storm," she said.

Now, she is the vice president of public relations for the Niagara chapter of Toastmasters and encourages anyone else who is dealing with the fear of people and public speaking to give it a try... even though they don't waste any time at the first meeting, trying to get you to come out of your shell.

For more information about the Toastmasters, contact Annunziata at debbieannunziata@yahoo.com.

Fundraiser for BBBS and COPE

An upcoming event that has a strict rule of "no boys allowed" is getting ready to take place on Aug. 22.

The event will be called the "Power of Pretty" and proceeds will go toward Big Brothers Big Sisters Fort Erie and Community Outreach Program Erie (COPE).

"Along with giving back to the community, the purpose of the event is to demonstrate that women can be strong, powerful and influential within the community and in their own lives without sacrificing their femininity," said event organizer Rebecca Proulx, who is the owner of Fit First Fitness. All ages are welcome to attend an afternoon of pampering, shopping, fashion shows and entertainment.

For more information, call Proulx at (905) 668-7017.

Town forms hospital committee

The Town of Fort Erie is moving ahead with the establishment of a Hospital Services Committee, approved at Monday's council-in-committee meeting in a recommendation.

In the staff report, it says the purpose of the committee is to identify and prioritize services and enhancements to the current compliment of services being provided at the Douglas Memorial Hospital.

The members will include the mayor and one member of council, the general manager of gaming and health and wellness, two members of the local medical community and two local residents.

God took him home, it was His will. But in our hearts we love him still. His memory is as dear today As in this hour he passed away. We often sit and think of him When we are all alone. Cannons get the bats going Fort Erie Cannons Kris Hodges is welcomed back to the dugout by his teammate Mike Fowler after scoring a run in the first of the inning of play against the Thorold Fanions on Wednesday. The Cannons won the game 5-5 and now hold the second place position in the Niagara District Baseball League. Their next home game is Friday Aug. 20 at Oakes Park at 7:30 p.m. against the Rose City Thorns.

Hawks' season cut short

Defending champs won't be competing for President's Cup

The Niagara Hawks Senior 'B' lacrosse team's season has come to an end. Going into the Can-Am league finals, the Niagara Hawks knew their competition, the Oranoga Redhaws, would be just as hungry as they were for the title.

Unfortunately, for the local team, their opponent came out with two narrow wins in the best of three series, taking each game 9-7.

The Hawks were hoping to defend their title as Can-Am champs and advance to the President's Cup in British Columbia.

Now, the Redhaws will represent the Can-Am league in the prestigious lacrosse tournament.

Bricks & Bouquets

If you have a brick or bouquet send it to editorial@forterietimes.com or phone 905-871-3100, ext. 210 and leave a message

Brick

To the rude mom at my son's soccer game for intentionally parking your child's baby buggy in front of me so I had to move to watch my own son play soccer. It was very rude and inconsiderate when you were asked politely to move the buggy back so I could see the field and watch my son play. You are not setting a very good example for your own children when you are so inconsiderate of others.

Bouquet

To the enthusiastic and large crowd at this Wednesday's Fort Erie Cannons game, especially the group who sits in the outfield and calls themselves "the bleacher creatures." They are extremely supportive of local sports and realize that cheering on a local team is something to do on a weekend.

Bouquet

To the parents who provide safety helmets and insist they be worn. Another bouquet to parents who do not smoke in their home or vehicle with their children. Not only are these laws, it's for the safety and well being of the most precious gift you've been given in life. To the parents who don't abide by the laws... shame on you!

Brick

To the lady driving a blue van who blew through the stop sign at the corner of Ort and Bowen Roads recently, narrowly missing a vehicle that crossed in front of you and our car which had slowed even though we had the right of way and was able to stop to avoid being broadsided. I know you didn't realize what you did until it was too late to stop. Thank goodness I don't trust that intersection and always slow down to avoid what almost happened that day.

Each winter there is energized anticipation in planning the season ahead. What flowers will be used? What will the outdoor scheme be? Will there be enough light, especially during the days of midwinter maintenance? Where will we get enough money? How will we want to the watering of everything?

It all gets done by the commitment of volunteers and a supportive community. And it keeps getting bigger and better each year. At least we think so!

What keeps a dynamic project like this going? It is the common mission of making the community a beautiful place. It also lies in the uniqueness of the volunteers themselves. The endowed beauty is simply enjoying the experience.

Each volunteer is unique and takes on a fascinating and captivating role. Together it is like a gardening drama with characters who play out their true nature while they work. Let me tell you about them.

In planting time July and late is a team of spongers. Lots is the specialist with July as the assistant. Late decides which plant will go where. She calls out, "White peonies," and July keeps them coming.

Also, asking questions has its necessary place. If the "no-call" boss is creating a new pattern or changing the plan, expect lots to ask, in a very confident tone. "Why are you doing that?" or "What are you doing now?"

Then there's Carl, our meticulous gardener. His goal is perfection and every one needs a Carl. Carl can often be found with his personalized trowel in hand, digging the last root of that self-sought fountain grass from among the rose matts.

April often assigns of gardening expertise while Carol, the newest member of the team, complements with affirmations. When these pairs arrive for a work session, his "double double-double" goes!

During planting and especially heavy work times, Steve and Mervyn dig along time. Occasionally, our paths cross with Steve, the watering guy, who reports on plant conditions or works of topiary anticipation because he has just finished everything.

High is our poliostrapher and mother. It is not unusual for high to ask, "Now why in the world would you do that?" or begin a query with, "I don't know what you think but..." But, at the other end of the scale, High is our social conscience. When the boss says, "Well we go for coffee once," she can sleep easy again in the first to say, "Sure, I'm here for a coffee."

In conclusion, this group produces a project that lets Central Beach boast of beautiful floral garden entrance scenes for all to enjoy.

Just for the record - High prefers a medium black with four sugars on the side, Lois wants on a sugar but with milk if it isn't too close to bed time, April likes a large double-double and the new one of us just takes an easy black maple with cream!

We'd love to have you join us. Or why not create a project in your neighborhood?

Roadshow Begins Next Week in Ft. Erie!

By Jason Delong
Treasure Hunters Roadshow
STAFF WRITER

Clean out your attics, closets and lock boxes, because the Roadshow is coming to Ft. Erie next week. Roadshow experts will be in town examining antiques, collectibles, gold and silver.

While the Roadshow will accept anything that's old, they will be focusing on gold and silver coins dated 1964 and before, military items, toys and trains, musical instruments, pocket and wrist watches. Scrap gold

"U.S. coins dated 1964 and before are most sought after by collectors. Coins made before 1964 are 90% silver and valuable because of the silver content or could be worth even more if one happens to be a rare date."

is expected to be a popular category this week due to soaring gold prices.

Expert buyers for the Roadshow have noticed a tremendous increase in the amount of gold coming to the

Got Gold? This week, visitors can cash in on antiques, collectibles, gold, silver, coins or just about anything that is old.

Roadshow and for good reason. Record gold prices have Roadshow guests cashing in on broken jewelry or jewelry they don't wear anymore with our "fair and honest" purchase offers.

The Roadshow encourages anyone planning a visit to take a minute and examine their jewelry box or their lock box at the bank and gather anything that's gold. If a guest is not sure if something is gold, bring it anyway and the Roadshow staff will test it for free. Other gold items of interest include gold coins, gold ounces, gold proof sets and dental gold.

Other types of items Roadshow experts hope to see include old toys and train sets. Archie Davis, roadshow toy expert spoke about some of the top toys getting great offers. "Old tin windup toys from the late 1860's through the 1960's are in great demand now," said Davis, "Especially those that are character related. Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck, the Flintstones or any character toys are sought. Old Buddy I. toys from the 1920's to the 1960's are in demand." Basically any item made before 1965 are wanted. Train sets made by Lionel, American Flyer, Marklin and others have the potential to fetch high prices. Davis also stressed, "Toys with boxes and in mint condition bring sensational prices. Most of the toys that come to the Roadshow are not in perfect shape but can still bring good prices from collectors."

When expert Tom Fuller was asked what he enjoyed most about working at the Roadshow, he was quick to answer "Old coins and paper currency. For as long as I can remember I have been fascinated with collecting coins.

Above • A guest listens in as Mike Delong estimates and tells about the values of his coin collection.

I would go through the change in my parents' grocery store looking for rare dates and errors. Once, I found a silver quarter that I sold for $300.00. Not bad for an 8 year old."

Fuller went on to explain that any U.S. coins dated 1964 and before are most sought after by collectors. Coins made before 1964 are 90% silver and valuable because of the silver content or could be worth even more if one happens to be a rare date. "We help people sort through their coins for unique dates. We buy all types of coins at the Roadshow from wheat pennies to buffalo nickels, which
